Note: Contact the college advisement center for help in outlining an efficient schedule.

Note: Students are encouraged to complete an average of 15 credit hours each semester or 30 credit hours each year, which could include spring and/or summer terms. Taking fewer credits substantially increases the cost and the number of semesters to graduate.
It is strongly recommended that StDev 317, a 1-credit-hour course, be taken at the end of the sophomore year or the beginning of the junior year. Because liberal arts degrees provide preparation in a variety of useful fields rather than a single career track, this course is recommended to help liberal arts students focus on specific educational and occupational goals and to identify the career options or educational opportunities available to them. The course will introduce them to the resources needed for accessing information about graduate schools, internships, careers, and career development. Students will learn basic employment strategies, including the steps necessary for obtaining employment related to their own specialty.

For each R course, you may only take one class on any particular figure or topic. For instance, if you wish to take multiple classes of Phil 320R: Studies in Ancient Philosophy, you may only take Plato once, but you may then take Aristotle or Stoicism or any of the other figures or topics listed under Phil 320R.

THE DISCIPLINE:
From its first appearance in ancient Greece down to the present, philosophy has sought to understand the world and the place of human beings within it. As it frames ideas by means of which to clarify and explain experience, philosophy discloses its faith in the ultimate lucidity of things. Philosophy’s respect for the authority of intelligence fosters a preference for persuasion that is fundamental to personal growth and democratic society. Students who study philosophy will find that it not only provides insight into life’s fundamental concerns, it also helps them develop their capacity for clear thinking and perceptive judgment. Such competence will serve them well as they pursue further education or begin their careers.

CAREERS:
Philosophy offers excellent career preparation, but not in the way that, say, accounting does. The value of a major in philosophy resides in the intellectual development it promotes. It lays a foundation on which more specialized study may build. In various standardized tests, philosophy majors tend to do extremely well on the verbal aptitude and on the analytic thinking sections. So philosophy can prepare a student for any type of work that requires highly developed reading and writing skills. Students who elect to major in philosophy should look beyond their bachelor’s degree right from the start. For example, philosophy is an excellent background for the study of law or medicine. Those who intend to enter graduate school will need to start early on the foreign language requirement.

CAREER SUGGESTIONS AND STRATEGIES:
- Counseling: Develop excellent verbal and written communications skills; gain related work experience; acquire master’s degree in Library Science; take counseling courses; obtain master’s degree in social work or counseling. Education—teaching, research, administration, student affairs. Obtain PhD for most teaching and research positions; develop one or more concentrations in math, business, medicine, etc. gain related experience; do internship.
- Research—obtain PhD for college and university positions; develop excellent research, verbal and written communications skills; gain related experience.
- Government—staff positions, congressional staffs, lobbying. Learn federal, state, and local application processes. Consulting—obtain graduate degree; gain related experience. Ethics—medical, environmental, research. Obtain PhD for most positions; participate in professional organizations; join debate groups; develop excellent research, verbal and written communication skills; learn government job application process.
- Writing—writing, editing, technical writing, journalism, advertising. Serve on college newspaper staff; develop excellent writing and desktop publishing skills; take courses in journalism, advertising, English; get related experience; join professional organizations.
- Business—management, sales/marketing, human resources, marketing research, finance, insurance, lobbying, advertising. Take business minor; get related experience; earn leadership roles in campus organizations; take advertising courses. For more information on careers in your major, please refer to From Major to Career, a publication located in all college advisement centers.

MAP DISCLAIMER
